- The publication is a systematic analysis of the application of EU law and in an innovative way links EU institutional law with its decision-making processes. It analyzes and compares the basic principles of application of individual sources of EU law, while these results are fully applicable in other EU countries (for example, the publication is used by academics and researchers in the Czech Republic). At the same time, an innovative way of research consists in a case-by-case interpretation of the application of EU law with an analysis of more than 300 judgements of the Court of Justice of the EU.
- There are 21 responses to the publication in the CREPČ across the legal branches, ie. the output is fundamental to the examination of EU legal norms within individual legal orders.

- In: Universal, regional, national. Ways of the development of private international law in 21st century. Brno : Masarykova univerzita, 2019. - S. 315-335 [print]. - ISBN 978-80-210-9496-3 URL: https://science.law.muni.cz/knihy/monografie/Rozehnalova_DevelopmentPIL.pdf
- The scientific output is a critical analysis of the Court of Justice's decision-making in the dynamically developing area of judicial cooperation in EU civil matters, and the research results in the determination of the limits of the Court's intervention in the decision-making of the general courts of the Member States. This approach of the author is also implemented by other academics within the Department (Peter Lysina), as well as other departments of international law in the Slovak Republic (e.g. Miloš Levrinc).

- One of the most recent scientific outputs is a critical analysis of the decision-making activity of Slovak courts in the field of application of European and national law. The paper offers a solution to a challenging and protracted litigation agenda in energy law with an impact on the state budget and the budget of private companies worth several million euros. Recent case law confirms the conclusions drawn in the research summarised in the published paper.
